“Why We Should Grab Every Opportunity to Serve the World”

Christina ‘Tippi’ Cogen—Founder & CEO Thrive Global

Christina "Tippi" Cogen was born and raised in Hawaii, growing up in Central Honolulu. She moved away shortly after graduating high school to fulfill her educational goals and a full career in the military. Now retired from the U.S. Army Chaplaincy and with two wartime campaigns under her belt, Tippi has returned home, and is on a mission. Her objective is to help mentor at-risk youth and engage working professionals to use their vacation time for more, by serving in humanitarian efforts around the world.

Tippi runs the local 501c3 nonprofit called Thrive Global, in operation for a little more than three years. She has conducted seven service trips abroad and more than 92 local sustainability projects that get underserved youth out and involved in community service.

Come to the Professional Women's Network luncheon on May 23 and learn how you will be a better leader in business and a great role model for your family if you get involved in community service.
